Inform USA Accreditation

211 San Joaquin is actively pursuing accreditation through Inform USA – a meaningful step toward elevating the quality, consistency, and impact of our services. This journey reflects our commitment to excellence and our vision of building a stronger, more connected community where everyone can access the help they need with confidence and trust.

Lifelong Learning Together

We partnered with the Children's Museum of Stockton to create an interactive exhibit, bringing the vital resource of 211 to life for young visitors. We believe children should grow up knowing 211 as confidently as 911, and by introducing it in a fun, age-appropriate way, we're building early awareness that help is always available.

First Mobile App in California

We launched the first 211 mobile app in California and unveiled a redesigned, user-friendly website to make accessing help easier. By modernizing our digital tools, we're ensuring that individuals and families can connect to vital resources anytime, anywhere—continuing our mission to make support simple, accessible, and always within reach.

What is Coordinated Entry System (CES)?

Kick It CA

211SJ received a call from a mother seeking support to quit smoking after more than 21 years. She recognized that quitting requires time and commitment but shared that she had tried several programs in the past without success. The caller explained that she often smoked to cope with stress, as she is the primary support for both her elderly parent and her teenage son, which required much of her time and energy.

The client was informed about the Kick It CA program and how it has supported many residents in successfully quitting smoking. She learned that the program offers support through telephone and text, as well as a mobile app that helps track progress and provides additional tools for quitting. Interested in trying a new approach, the client requested a referral to the program.

During a follow-up call, the client reported that the Kick It CA Quit Coaches had been extremely supportive. She shared that the staff were patient as she learned how to use the program and develop a personalized quit plan. Although it took a few sessions to fully customize her plan, she expressed excitement about following it and has already noticed positive changes in her behavior.

The client stated that the support from the Quit Coaches helped her find healthier ways to manage stress. As a result, she felt happier and more present with her family and looks forward to spending more quality time with her parent and son.

Community Assistance Program

A gentleman received a text message reminding residents to contact 211SJ for information about transportation ticket discount programs. He shared that he travels to the Bay Area weekly for dialysis treatments and had been paying a friend to drive him. Living on a fixed income, the client explained that covering this cost had become increasingly difficult. Both he and his wife receive Social Security income, which is primarily used to cover their rent and utilities.

During the call, the client was also provided referrals to electric bill payment assistance programs, local food pantries, senior centers, and the ACE CAP Program for additional support.

During a follow-up call, the client happily reported that he had begun taking the train to his medical appointments. Because both he and his wife were approved for the transportation discount program, they have also been able to take trips together to the Livermore and Pleasanton areas to visit friends and enjoy time in those communities. The savings from the program even allowed them to take a short trip to visit their children, whom they had not seen in years. The client shared that he has since encouraged several of his friends to sign up for the program as well.

Coordinated Entry System

A single mother contacted 211SJ seeking housing assistance for herself and her three young children. She also requested support with essential items such as diapers, baby formula, and educational materials for her children. She shared that since her husband abandoned the family about a year ago, they had been living in their car and moving between neighborhoods each night to find safe places to park. A few months ago, a friend informed her about local shelters, and the family has been staying in a shelter since then.

During the call, the mother was provided referrals to CalWORKs, affordable housing programs, early literacy resources, diaper banks, and baby formula assistance programs. She was also transferred to a Homeless Navigator for further assessment through the Coordinated Entry System (CES). The Homeless Navigator determined that the family was eligible for CES and placed them in the Community Queue. The client was reminded to contact 211SJ if there were any changes in their housing situation or income, as this could affect their eligibility.

When a project opening became available through the Rapid Rehousing Program, the family met the program's eligibility criteria, and a referral was submitted on their behalf. During a follow-up call, the mother shared that they had been approved for the program and had found a place to live. They are currently waiting for the housing inspection to be completed before they can move in. She expressed that her children are very excited and are looking forward to having a stable home and making new friends at their new school.

First 5 Care Coordination

An 18-year-old young woman contacted 211SJ seeking guidance and resources related to her pregnancy. She expressed concern about finding a safe and stable environment for herself and her baby. At the time of the call, the client was experiencing homelessness and reported staying at different parks throughout the county.

The caller was provided referrals to homeless shelters, food pantries, hot meal sites, shower programs, and clothing closets to help address her immediate needs. She was also referred to PREVAIL's Opportunity House, an emergency housing program designed to support young adults. Additionally, the Call Specialist introduced her to the First 5 Care Coordination Program, which provides support to families with young children.

With assistance from the Care Coordinator, the client received information about childcare payment assistance, child car seat resources, prenatal care support, and programs that provide baby equipment and infant clothing. She was also encouraged to visit the First 5 San Joaquin website for additional parenting resources.

During a follow-up call, the client shared positive updates. She reported connecting with the Child Passenger Safety Program and meeting with a certified technician who showed her how to properly install a car seat and informed her that a car seat would be available for her when her baby arrives. She also attended a prenatal checkup appointment and shared that her baby is doing well. The client is currently staying at a shelter while awaiting an opening at Opportunity House. She expressed gratitude for the resources and support provided, noting that they will be essential as she prepares to welcome her baby boy.
