A Few Compelling Stories...

A single mom with two teenagers called looking for low-income housing. She is staying with relatives in Lodi until she finds a place. Parent shared that due to the extremely high cost of living in the Bay Area, she couldn't afford to live there anymore and had to move her family to Stockton. She was provided a list of food pantries and low-income housing apartments. A follow-up call was made a month later. Parent has moved into a low-income apartment complex. When the parent initially called the apartment complex, she was placed on a waiting list. After weeks of waiting, the parent was informed that there was a unit available. The caller and her children have moved into their new home and now have steady housing.

A gentleman called in looking for financial assistance to help pay for his PG&E bill, as well as other resources so he can be a better father to his children. While speaking to him, he shared that he had just completed a rehabilitation program and that his 3-year-old son and 5-year-old daughter have just been returned to him. He has no income and is looking for work. Dad was referred to CalWORKs, CARE and FERA Programs, HEAP, and SJTEETH. During a follow-up call, the parent shared that he has found a job in the Bay Area and has been able to utilize the food pantries. He has also qualified for the CARE program to assist with his PG&E payments.

A mom called in seeking Christmas gifts for her children. The mom shared that she is caring for 10 children, two of which were under the ages of five. Four of the children were her own and the other six were her sister's children, for whom she was caring. The mom shared that feeding 10 children has been hard and very costly. She also shared that while caring for these children, she noticed that her two-year-old niece hardly speaks, but would point when she wants something. Mom was referred to WIC, CalFresh, and the Emergency Food Bank Pantry for food assistance. The call was warm line transferred to the Help Me Grow Call Center for developmental screening for the two year old. 2-1-1 staff did a follow-up call and spoke to the parent. The parent has visited the food pantry and the child has been referred to Valley Mountain Regional Center for services.
